

About this build — a quick note before you open it

I don't just talk about demo craft and the builder mindset; I'd rather show them. So I built a working employee-experience platform, a full product guide, and the sales assets to sell it — the way I'd work the role from day one.

This pack is a small, self-contained demonstration of how I approach technical sales: understand the product deeply, tell a connected value story, and build reusable assets that scale that knowledge to a whole team. It centres on the idea I find most compelling about an agentic HR platform — that engagement, performance and pay stop being separate tools and become one loop a manager can act on.

What's in the pack

1 · The working demo (index.html)

A single HTML file — open it, no install, works offline.
Role-aware: sign in as any of 15 people and the app adapts.
An agentic Manager Agent, always-on insights, and a Performance→Compensation link.
A one-click guided tour that runs a full 'signal → action → reward' story with live KPIs.

2 · The product guide (PDF)

A detailed, long-form reference to every screen and concept.
The kind of enablement asset I'd build to cut rep ramp time.
Written for mixed audiences — plain-language, glossary included.

3 · The sales one-pagers (PDF)

A value narrative for the exec who won't watch a screen.
A discovery → demo map: what I ask and what I show when the pain is real.
Objection-handling for the 'not a clean yes' moment.

How I built it

Quickly, and with AI in the loop — which is rather the point. I used AI the way the role describes: to go faster and build systems that scale knowledge, not to replace judgment. The result is a presentation-ready demo, its documentation, and its go-to-market assets, all consistent and all reusable. That is the same agentic, build-once-scale-it philosophy I'd model internally for the reps.

On authorship and intellectual property — so it's clear up front

I built everything here independently, from scratch, using only publicly-described product concepts and publicly-available materials. It is not affiliated with, endorsed by, or connected to any company, and it contains no proprietary code, data, screenshots or confidential information. Every person, metric, benchmark and AI output is fictional and illustrative. It exists purely to show my approach for this conversation, and I'm happy to adapt, extend or rebuild any of it live.

What it's meant to demonstrate

Demo craft

a tailored, story-led demo, not a feature tour.

Agentic fluency

I can explain and build agentic workflows.

Product depth

I've internalised the model and its value.

Builder mindset

reusable assets that ramp a whole team.

Best way to experience it: open the demo, click Guided tour, and let the story run — then ask me to go off-script anywhere. That's exactly how I'd handle it in front of a prospect.